“ The little brother from another mother. The little brother I always wish I had. It's been 6 or so years and I still think about how we grew together. How I was always hard on you because I wanted you to do better and how you were always there for me when I wasn't doing better because of my choices. You never switched up on me and I could go on but we both know the realest memories to cherish and hold on are the ones which only we shared. Look over me and mines litte bro.

You were a real juggalo

It would of been amazing to see you in your primest. I know you were really getting things together. It's a robbery what happened you were a dear friend and trust me if I knew our days were numbered I would of did things differently just to spend more time with my homie.

“ Way too young to go be with your mom and mam, but we are not suppose to understand God's plan...oftentimes, seems so unfair...

“ While I had not seen Andy for some time as I lived out of state for some time, I have fond memories of him when he was a child. He was a sweet and loving boy, always greeting me with a hug and a kind word. At Myers family events, he and my son Ryan, who was a few years younger than him, played together for hours. I was sad to hear of Andy's passing. He was loved and will be missed.
