

Joseph J. Scheuren

February 27, 1937 - October 16, 2021

No Services.

Tribute Wall

SC

“ I miss my father more each and every day..

Some days are harder then others.

My father was a hard working man who taught me many valuable lessons in life, and I miss learning more from him because of him passing away...

I will always remember the little story him and I shared about a week before his passing, it was about him recognizing God and for how he wasnt ashamed to commit his sins to God and to tell God that he very well believed in him and was gonna come pick up where he left off at when he was an alter boy at St. Patrick's growing up.

Daddy I'm so lost without you.

Thank you from my whole heart how much I have alot of your traits and how thankful I am to call you my DAD!!

Mommy misses you deeply, she made meatloaf today in remembrance of you..

Mom talks about you everyday..

We will be together again when the good Lord feels it's time for me to come to my heavenly home.

I LOVE YOU DADDY AND MISS YOU MORE THAN WORDS COULD EVER SAY...

The day you went home to be with the lord, we ALL knew it was your time and we were so blessed to have known what happened instead of just passing...

So blessed and grateful that you didn't have to lay in pain, go thru chemo or suffer for anything, just to know the yrs of being my daddy you are my strong loving hero, I've always looked up to you and everyday I think about what can I do to show you that I've cherished everything you have taught me and I know I will never get over this, never...

You always treated Clayton just as yours and hes so happy to claim you as his dad, not father in law...

Him and I cry daily from you not being here but truly understand that it was best for you to not suffer no more..

Forever on my mind and on my heart.

I LOVE YOU DADDY. 100 ❤️ 🙏 🥺 🥹

Suzanne (Scheuren) Cobaugh - February 19, 2022 at 09:21 PM

SC

“ Suzanne (Scheuren) Cobaugh lit a candle in memory of Joseph J. Scheuren

Suzanne (Scheuren) Cobaugh - February 19, 2022 at 08:48 PM